Purchases For State Are Studied

Attorney General Earl Fair-cloth, Secretary of State Tom Adams and Comptroller Fred Dickinson feel Florida has been spending tax money with inexcusable carelessness for years.

The three cabinet officers have been investigating practices of the Purchasing Commission since late in March and they are prepared to make some charges. to make some changes

"Whatever needs to be done will be done," Dickinson sad. Fair-cloth vowed they would be riding herd on all bulk purchases.

"The committee is unanimous in its insistence that meaningful reforms in purchasing be imple-mented," Adams declared.

The state Officials came up with specific findings as a result of their investigation.

Low bids can be rejected by state agencies with out any specific reason. And many items have been bought without bids.

Printing, supposedly controlled by law, has been given to "favored" printers under the screen of a "service" contract. Items such as cars have been bought through single bids rather than in bulk when lower prices can be established.

The surface has merely been scratched as a result of the investigation and the committee members feel a special cabinet subcommittee to check on purchasing should be established on a permanent basis.

Tomato Research Near Homestead

HOMESTEAD—Twenty acres of native pineland for use in tomato research has been purchased here by the Florida Agricultural Ex-periment Stations, according to Dr. J. R. Beckenbach, Stations

The land parcel is next to the present site of the Sub-Tropical Experiment Station headed by Dr. R. A. Conover.

Dr. Conover said the branch station has had a need for such land, which is on Rockdale soil, for research in breeding, irriga-tion and fertilizer studies with tomatoes, as well as for insect con-trol and pest disease research.

"Each year we have had to use much of the present 20 acres at the Station. With successive tomato crops, plant vigor and yields have declined to the point where our results are untrustworthy," said Dr. Conover. "We need said Dr. Conover. We Are Discontinuing AMBULANCE SERVICE

Because of the impending coverage of the minimum wage law, and the unrealistic regulations and demands being made upon us by the State of Florida through the State Board of Health and being enforced by the Palm Beach County Health Department, we are forced to discontinue Ambulance Service in the Pahokee-Canal Point area.

To our many friends in the area we feel a great personal responsibility and it is with deep regret that we make this announcement. However, we have been given until August 1, 1966, to meet the criteria set forth by the State Board of Health for certification.

These demands make it a financial impossibility for us to continue this service. We pledge our cooperation to any public agency which might undertake these services even to the point of helping with training and working with them until they become fully oriented to the job.

It is with great personal concern that we announce the discontinuation of Ambulance Service effective August 1, 1966. We and our staff will devote full time to the profession of Funeral Service from this date on.

Advertising Built Jim Walter Homes

TAMPA (FNS)—Recognizing a formerly unrecognized market and exploiting it through advertising was the key to success of the shell home industry, the "father of the shell homes" recently told members of the Advertising Club of Tampa James W. Walter, head of the half-billion dollar Jim Walter Corp-oration, told the adclubbers that up until 20 years ago homebuilders neglected the market composed of families of men whose income were less than 4,000 annually.

Through advertising, Walter crasped this market and sold more Walter than 125,000 shell homes. The idea was to sell a home completely f.n-ished on the outside, but unfinished on the inside. The new owner then completed the job himself. The firm also provides financing, insurand other needed services.

Walter got the idea from a 60cent classified advertisment in The Tampa Tribune in 1946. He bought an unfurn.shed house and ap-proached the builder with the idea of the two forming a partnership. Two years later Walter bought out his partner's interest.
Today, the Jim Walter Corpora-

How to speak out for freedom today

Free men have never gone in much for silence. Even before the first thirteen States became United States, men were speaking for freedom loud and clear.

Today Americans speak out for freedom many ways—in Congress, in local government, in neighborhood activities. Some speak out for freedom in other languages, in other lands. And millions of Americans speak out for freedom every time they buy U.S. Sayings Bonds.

Every Savings Bond you buy is an investment in freedom. While you're saving money for your own family's future, you're helping Uncle Sam tend to the business of keeping men free today.

Perhaps you don't speak out for freedom in the same tone of voice when you buy a Bond as Patrick Henry did in his famous speech. But you speak every bit as surely. And every bit as proudly.

Why not speak out fez freedom now? Buy Bonds at the bank or on the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.
